"SEE DOES NOT KNOW CHICKEN FROM TURKEY."

BY JILLIE F. BARK.

Hele is the hyacinth root of her race;

She is a creature of an exquisite

And she dresses with perfectly consummate

But she doesn't know chicken from turkey.

She knows many languages, Latin and dead;

In science and fiction is very well read;

But she cannot cook meat, and she cannot make bread.

And she doesn't know chicken from turkey.

She can play a "Parlor" or "Nocturne" with skill;

Can sing up to "D" - has a wonderful tall;

Can write a good story, or sonnet, but still

She doesn't know chicken from turkey.

She's been to the Tibet, the Rhine and the Nile;

She's a patriot in every patriotic style;

Can decorate China, a chicken or a tit;

But she doesn't know chicken from turkey.

She's always felt satisfied, graceful and cool;

A critic, both just and correct, so cool;

And knows every cut of the Kensington knave.

But she doesn't know chicken from turkey.

She can work a design by lighting or dark;

She's a poet, and a very good one at that;

She's a maker for her husband a well-fitting shirt;

She doesn't know chicken from turkey.

She's willing a girl should read Latin and Greek;

She's a German and French and Italian speak;

And be "up" in the latest theatrical fad;

I'd like her to make and sew to take part;

Read poetry, science and cultivate art;

If husband and children were first in her

And if she knew chicken from turkey.

Know Turkey from rice, know a hen from a chicken.

A bull from a cow, a broil from a fry;

And if she went into the market to buy,

Know every well chicken from turkey.

For, to make a home happy, all knowledge must blend;

Art, science and service their benefits lend;

Then, ladies, be clear and wise, and understand

To know about chicken and turkey.

An old saying for a poor housewife.

The Continent.

HOW THE BOOIE STRUCK MR. SMITH.

"Minnesota," the brakeman threw the car door open with a bang, and yelled the name at the same instant.

But half the people in the car had gathered their shawls and overcoats up long before, and were on their feet ready for a plunge into the crowd at the depot. Mr. Smith joined the pre-cession. A great pile of chests and boxes just from Norway and Sweden—the overflow of the baggage-room—stood at one side. An old woman with her short petticoat and shawl over her head sat mulling her foolish gums, and an old man in knee breeches and long stockings—both very tight—pointed hat and leather apron, was shouldering his trunk. Plenty of well-dressed people rushed through the opposite doors.

Mr. Smith spoke to one of the numerous hucksters who was making himself hoarse, and he and his wife were whispering away to a hotel. "Not a room,"

said the hotel clerk, "unpleasantly," and he languished, "a room, sir? Why, there are six conventions in this city now, sir; two expositions, and—four room! Cots run out a week ago."

Mr. Smith went back to his wife.

"They are full here, we must go somewhere else," he said. They fared no better at the next place, however. At the third they could get a curt "no."

At the fourth they could find nothing, but a small room, and that up too many stairs for comfort. But they took it.

The next morning they were up for an early start. "We must get a house at once," said Mr. Smith. "These hotel bills will never do. I'll look around for a place of business, and you can look for a house. Plenty of real estate offices close by here. I've been looking around; none of them open yet. They all have lists of houses, they tell me here."

"Better get a morning paper," said

Mr. Smith. "I have one now; we can look up the places. Here is a house," and, and says, "children all married."

Mr. Smith laughed.

"I rather like that. Seems to be considerable originality here. I'll run out and engage a store this morning, and you look up a house."

How ably he said it. Where ignorance is bliss, O, yes.

At noon he came wearily creeping up the stairs. Mrs. Smith was there to meet him.

"Did you find a house?" he asked,

and in the same breath she said: "Have you a store?"

"A store," he cried, savagely, "why, there isn't such a thing in this town; not of empty ones. There are whole stacks of goods stored in warehouses because there isn't room to put them. I saw one store that rented for $700 a year, and they're run a partition through it and get $1,000 for each side. They are building new ones but they are all rented before the foundation is laid."

"That is just the way with the houses."

I have climbed a million stairs this morning, Mr. Smith, and only heard of two houses. The agent took me out to see them, and one was built in Territorial days, I am sure, and the other was a tenement in a long, ugly row.

One man said we'd have to live in a hut and I don't know but we shall."

"Just tell me to mind his business," snapped Mr. Smith, "and that you are used to a house."

"Oh, but he didn't mean it for in-politeness; he was just as polite as people—by all ways. I never saw people take such pains to help a person they never saw before."

"In the afternoon they tried again but with no better success.

"I got a track of a house," said Mrs.

Smith, "and of course I didn't know where he meant when he told the street and number, and we drove and drove all I asked him if the house was in St.

Paul. When we got there I told him he could turn about and drive back. I wouldn't live in such a place. I copied some of the signs down there. And she produced a paper on which appeared considerable phonetic spelling:

"Far run. That is an Irishman. For tail. He was too far from the lakes.

These houses lot for sale; too bad he didn't know it; Turner sell bought and exchanged; Rome fur route. If Rome is, Minneapolis don't seem to be.

Capitals are plenty, evidently; see this:

"Furnish E. D. Room for Rent." And

this, "Boarding." And have you noticed the odd names on the signs:

Kilbird and Crows have a feed store;

and Perry and Onion are grocers.

Clapsaddle ought to be in a harness store and Scorn a minister."

"Well, you seem to find considerable amusement in it; I don't."

They were two discouraged people when they went to bed that night, but they had more courage after a night's rest, and started out again next day.

They consulted the morning papers first.

"Here are some of those strange advertisements," said Mrs. Smith, "an ox and a frog at the top, and a story about them."

"Why, it says Asop's fables at the end."

"A good idea," said her husband.

"A man has got to do it out here, it attracts attention. I have my advertisements all brought me ready for the printer."

"Better keep them till you find a store. Hear this: 'What is home without a mother, or a folding bed?'

And here is the funniest of all: 'Hello,

Mr. Flannigan, you didn't leave your front name when you left your wagon to be painted. Better bring it around.

And, Mr. Smith, do hear this: 'Wanted by a man from Boston, a change to do chores and take care of a horse, for his board. Don't ever say we came from the East, Mr. Smith. I found out yesterday that my opinions were all wrong; the West is not at all wild and uncivilized, and—'

"But you didn't find a house—

there none advertised?"

"Yes, here's one," and she read the description. "I like that—I'll go and look at it."

"I rented it an hour ago," said the owner, when she rang at his door and inquired; "but there is another that was for rent yesterday, three blocks from here. It may be taken; I'll go around and see."

He came back in a few minutes. "A family is moving in this morning;

houses don't stay long in the market in this town. If you take the street cars here and go out to the end of the line, you may find a house. It is a good way out, but a pleasant neighborhood."

She thanked him and got into the car

he had signaled to stop.

"It is pretty," she said to herself,

"but how new, not one old house."

"Every house that was new enough to completion was occupied. In some the families were in the chamber; some had only the narrow back part of the house built, one room, sometimes, or two at most, and lived there while the rest went up. She went about from one to another till she was weary out.

"Come in and rest," said one lady who opened the door. "You look tired.

House-hunting is hard work."

"So many new houses, some of them ought to be for rent," said Mrs. Smith.

"All these houses have been built since the baby was born," said the woman, pointing to where a pale young mother sat with her child in her arms.

Mrs. Smith looked at the baby and back at the houses in astonishment.

"You are a stranger here, I see," continued the woman. "We have only been here six months, but one got to feeling at home very soon. You had better go to the workman when you start out again and ask about the houses. They often know who owns them, and if they are rented, and so many ask them, they find nothing strange of it."

Mrs. Smith tried that when she started again, but, though she received the politeness of answers and all the volunteer information the men possessed on empty houses, she found none for herself, and went back to her hotel weary and discouraged.

Mr. Smith was there ahead of her.

He had found no store, and he instantly wanted one, but gave no reas-son.

The next day he was more mysterious, but began to talk of "the future" of Minneapolis, of the "pneumatic growth" of the city, and of the riches in store for any man who was wise enough to invest in real estate.

"Eastern people don't understand," he said, "they don't know in the East."

"Eastern people," Mr. Smith, one would think, the way you are talking to-day, that you have been born here.

We have been here only three days, remember. You are not a Western man."

"I shall be one; I begin to feel like one already."

"What do you mean? What has come over you? Where is your money?"

as a quick thought struck her.

"Invested."

"Invested? Where, in what?"

"In lots; lots B, 5 and 7, in Bom-beast's addition, and two corner lots in Gettem's."

"Gettem's addition? Mr. Smith, I never told you to be an idiot. That is where I went after a house—three blocks out, if an inch."

"Yes, but such an improvement, such—"

"Such nonsense, Mr. Smith, you have thrown your money away." But he hadn't.

The fifth day after their arrival, he rushed up to her breathless.

"You remember those lots?"

"Yes."

"In Gettem's ad—"

"I made $1,000 on them."

"You made what?"

THE NEWS.

Intelligence by Wire from All the World.

FOREIGN.

—London was terribly excited over two explosions, occurring almost simultaneously, and which were at once set down to the authorship of the work of the Germans. Both explosions occurred in the underground tunnel, one at the Prince Street station of the Metropolitan railway and the other near Westminster station. Six railway carriages were derailed. All of them were crowded with passengers returning from the fisheries exhibition. About thirty people were injured, a large number of whom were taken to the hospitals. Nothing occurred in London in recent months has excited such widespread excitement and alarm, and the widest rumors of dynamite plots to destroy the city were at once set afloat. The explosions were of a most powerful nature. Four machines similar to rockets were found in the tunnel near the scene of one of the explosions.

—The steamer Holyhead, lying between Dublin and Holyhead, collided with the German ship Albatross, both sinking. Two of the Holyhead's crew and thirteen of the Albatross's were drowned.

—An enormous number of people attended the closing of the International Fisheries exhibition at London. The Prince of Wales announced that he will be successful in his hunt for the most enthusiastic of his subjects.

—Regarding the London explosions, details show that the number injured is fully as large as first reported. It has also been determined that nitro-glycerine played largely into the composition of the explosives used. The Irish in London are greatly excited, and are free to confess that the crime was planned by enemies of the National movement. O'Donnell, a British agent, claims the explosion was caused by Fenians, of whom movements he is aware. All the banks, public buildings and prisons at Glasgow are carefully guarded against explosions. The explosion at Frankfurt-on-Main was nitro-glycerine, which had been placed in eight small glass bottles, each containing a few drops of the liquid.

—De Brazza, the French explorer, is reported to have been killed in a fight in the Congo region.

—It is stated that the French have rejected that portion of the West African coast between Gabon and the mouth of the Congo, which includes about twelve towns, and will enforce the Gabon tariff. Three of the most important points are commanded by iron-clad.

—In order to prevent the Lord Mayor of Dublin from delivering an address on the centenary, a large number of the Lord Mayor's Guards took possession of the City hall. During the passage of the Lord Mayor through the streets a man and a boy were shot. The Orangemen plucked the Union Jack on the roof of the hall, and stoned the nationalists.

PERSONAL.

—Dick, at Philadelphia, N. J., William Coffin (colored), aged 113; and at Brooklyn, N. Y., Margaret Miller, aged 102.

—It would not surprise Washington politicians if Attorney General Brewster soon retired from the cabinet.

—Belva A. Lockwood and Galeson C. Co. have been suspended from practicing before the Interior department at Washington on account of some of their alleged irregularities in pension matters.

—Henry Irving was greeted by a large and fashionable audience in the Star theater, New York, upon the occasion of his debut upon the American stage. The play was "The Bells." The audience were profuse in their applause and seemed favorably impressed with the actor.

—O. N. Fox, of New York, who was Assistant Secretary of the Navy under Secretary Welles, is dead.

—Dorsey, the star-router, has given $5,000 to the university at Santa Fe.

—Major Gen. Schofield has fully installed himself at Chicago, as Commander of the Military division of the Missouri.

—Aggie Hill, of San Francisco, has signed Senator Sharon in the Superior court for divorce, division of property and alimony, alleging that he is worth $100,000.

—The wife of Averett O'Donnell is working as a domestic in Philadelphia. She has sent to London an affidavit that he told her that he was going to the diamond fields of Africa.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL.

—The earnings of the United States Steel for October was $1,232,411, of which $146,000 were silver dollars.

—The creditors of Shaw & Brothers, the heavy New England ironworks and hardware dealers, who failed some time ago, refuse the firm's offer of 33 cents on the dollar, and will wait for 30 days.

—Following is the liquidation of the debt statement issued on the 1st inst.

—The bankruptcy of Jane Hunter founded on St. Louis, Mo., all the crew perishing save two seamen.

—Fire at Markon, Wis., destroyed the postoffice and five business structures, entailing a loss of $30,000.

—An express train on the Wabash road came upon a place in the track near Clarinda, Iowa, where some one had drawn the spikes and let the rails spread out. The engineer was killed, and the train saved himself by jumping.

—The rough weather of the lake last week was disastrous to shipping, several vessels having been wrecked.

—The steamer City of Toronto was destroyed by fire at Port Huron, Ont., entailing a loss of $30,000.

—An old lady and a boy were burned to death at Cincinnati, Ohio, and two children were cremated at Middletown, Ohio, the result of the burning of the houses in which they dwelt.

—Three children were killed in New York by the tumbling down of a small frame building, which was in process of demolition.

CRIMES AND CRIMINALS.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE CRAWFORD AVALANCHE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN.

To the Circuit Court for the County of Crawford
in Chancery:

The petition of William C. Stevens, Auditor General of said State of Michigan, respectfully shows that the State of Michigan, hereinafter forth and marked "Schedule A," contains a description of all lands in said county of Crawford upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein, and which were returned as delinquent for non-payment of taxes, and which taxes have not been paid together with the total amount of such taxes, with interest computed thereon to the time fixed for sale as provided by law, and the cost of advertising and other expenses of sale of each of said parcels of land.

Your petitioner further shows to the Court that said lands were returned to the Auditor General as delinquent for the non-payment of said taxes for said years respectively, and that said delinquent returns were made prior to the first day of July, 1887.

Your petitioner further shows that the said taxes on the said described lands have remained unpaid for more than one year from the first day of July next after their return to the Auditor General, and the said taxes not having been paid, and the same being now due and remaining unpaid as above set forth, your petitioner prays a decree of the Court of Michigan against each parcel of said lands, for the payment of the several amounts of taxes, interest, costs of advertising, and other expenses of sale,
as computed and extended in said schedule, against the several parcels of land contained therein, and in default of payment of the same several sums computed and extended against said lands, that each of said parcels of land may be sold for the amounts due thereon as provided by law.

And your petitioner will ever pray, etc.
WILLIAM C. STEVENS,
Auditor General.

SCHEDULE "A." 1887.
